Suguru Osako is one of my favorite marathon runners and one of the most influential runners in Asia.

He has a unique running style and technical characteristics, such as an efficient running rhythm, light footed steps and strong aerobic capacity. He was once the Asian record holder, breaking the Asian marathon record to under 2 hours and 6 minutes, which allowed everyone to see that Asians are constantly making progress in the field of track and field.

他拥有独特的跑步风格与技术特点，比如高效的跑步节奏，轻盈的步伐以及强大的有氧能力。他曾是亚洲纪录的保持者，将亚洲马拉松纪录突破2小时6分钟，让大家能够看到黄种人在田径领域不断拓展。

Honestly speaking, the success of a marathon depends on track - and - field level for half of the factors, and on psychological quality for the other half. Besides scientific training day after day, an attitude towards the marathon is particularly important. During the two - hour - long run, any second of slack will affect the overall result. During the run, Osako do not let his mind go blank. Instead, he is in a competitive state every second, paying attention to every detail of his body and examining all kinds of rhythm changes throughout the complex 42 - plus kilometers. Actually, what I like the most about him is his attitude towards life. Training in the early morning, unwavering meditation, education with love, business

不夸张地说马拉松成功是一个一半因素取决于田径水平，另外一半取决于心理素质。除了日复一日的科学训练，一种对马拉松的态度尤为重要。在长达两小时的跑步之中，任何一秒的松懈都会影响整个成绩，大迫杰在跑步之中并没有放空，而是每一秒都在竞技当中，注重自己身体各方面细节，审视各种节奏变化在复杂的42公里多之中。其实我最喜欢的一点是他对于人生的态度。凌晨的训练，不变的冥想，爱的教育，商业的发展，家庭的担当。看起来枯燥乏味的生活伴随着他的职业生涯，他始终如一。在竞技当中能够不顾一切地奔跑。人们常说人生像马拉松，我也可以说马拉松像人生，其实并不是枯燥乏味，在每一步的交替之中也能够感受生命的真谛。
